Rejeanne, 4 and William, 6, wait for the start of the annual Terry Fox Run.

Running in the footsteps of Terry Fox

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Hundreds came out for the Terry Fox Run in Bradford on Sept. 20, marking the 35th anniversary of Fox's Marathon of Hope.

This year's Bradford Run was once again organized by Elsie Silva Kniff, who stepped in six years ago when the local run/walk was cancelled, due to a lack of participants and volunteers.

She was inspired by "three amazing women" - her grandmother, her Godmother and her Aunt, all of whom battled cancer. Two are survivors, thanks to new research. "There's life with cancer, now," Silva Kniff said - the legacy of Terry Fox, who passed through Bradford on his Marathon of Hope in 1980.

to be committed to the run, inspired by people like Cathy MacLean, Zumba instructor, who has organized Zumba fundraisers for Heart & Stroke, Autism and cancer, and for the last few years, has led the warm-up at the Bradford Terry Fox Run.

MacLean was diagnosed with cancer two years ago. "We are happy to say she's now cancer-free," Silva Kniff said, introducing a large team of "Zumba Women", who came out to support MacLean and the Terry Fox Run.

No change in yard waste collection

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

The county's Leaf & Yard Waste collection contract was up for renewal this year, and county councillors were asked, in the Aug. 11 meeting of Committee of the Whole, to approve the status quo: five bi-weekly collections in Spring, from April to June; and six bi-weekly collections in the Fall, from mid-October to early December.

Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Rob Keffer asked the county to consider adding summer collection, and proposed dividing the county into three regions, with curbside yard waste collection every three weeks.

The change would address the complaints of residents, regarding the lack of curbside collection during the summer months from July through September. It would also take pressure off the municipality, which currently picks up brush and yard waste bags abandoned at the curb, and handles debris left behind by serious storms, that bring down branches and tree limbs.

Mayor Keffer suggested that the waste company "could get economies, efficiencies" by picking up from a smaller area, every three weeks, which might overcome objections from smaller rural municipalities, concerned over rising costs.

"Hopefully this is enough of a compromise," he said, noting that county staff had promised to look into the proposal.

"They're going to come back with a report."

But when the report came back, the recommendation was to stick with the status quo, for at least another year - arguing that there wasn't enough time to look into alternatives, before the contract had to be renewed.

"My suggestion of one every three weeks didn't get much favour," admitted Keffer. He urged residents unhappy with the lack of summer pick-up of leaf and yard waste to contact the county directly.

"We've lost the battle, but the war's not over," said Deputy Mayor James Leduc, who supported the mayor's proposal. He said he would be asking for a recorded vote on the issue at county council.

Among those attending the event were Mayor Rob Keffer and Deputy Mayor James Leduc, presenting certificates of appreciation, in recognition of years of service.

Receiving five-year certificates were Antonio Greco, Kelly McCarthy, David Latarius, Peter Miller, Kelly Nesland, Tanya Skrice, Alexander Snedden, and Karl Walker.

New look for an old building

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Thirty years ago, Peter Woodworth was working for a company that specialized in re-staining building exteriors. The company would often receive phone calls from owners of painted brick buildings, looking for an alternative to sandblasting - who would be told, "Sorry, we can't help you." Woodworth had a better idea. Practicing on his own home, over a two-year period, he came up with a new process and a new company: The Brick Painters.

The company specializes in restoring old buildings - using paint to recreate traditional brick facades.

Residents of Bradford are aware of Woodworth's work. It was The Brick Painters that transformed the Evans & Evans law office on Holland St. West from a drab green and cream stucco building, into a classic "brick" turn-of-the-century office, using paint.

"We're really painting a mural - a mural of an old brick building," Woodworth says. It's a process that removes chipped paint, repairs crumbling and missing bricks with mortar, then covers the surface with almost 5 layers of paint, to create the look of traditional brick in trompe l'oeil ("fool the eye") detail.

Last week, Woodworth and his team started work on the old Winchester Arms building at 4 Holland St. West, at the "Four Corners," built in the 19th century.

He first tried a "test patch" on the side of the building for new owner, Gerry Lemos, of Bradford Heating & Air - and then, when given the green light, began the work of bringing new life to the peeling facade. "It's paint by numbers, because the bricks are already here. We just stay within the lines." The multiple layers of paint not only seal the bricks, but create the depth and shading that produce the "wow" factor - and gasps of "I don't believe my eyes!" from passers-by.

MIRIAM KING/BRADFORD TIMES

The Brick Painters, at work on the facade of the building at 4 Holland St. West.

"We go through the stages:

'Who are these idiots?' 'They're going to paint it one brick at a time!' - and then at the end, 'I don't believe it!'" says Woodworth.

He's been inspired by the location of the Winchester Arms, right in the heart of Bradford. "It's such a high-profile corner!"

The Brick Painters has recreated the combination of buff and red brick common to the area, with plans to also "restore" the appearance of portions of the foundation found above ground, by painting faux "natural stone."

He's hoping that residents will stop by to take a look - and that they won't believe their eyes.

Opinion

Point of View

No Brownie points

The federal government has announced a $1.9 billion surplus for 2014.

But is it really a surplus? $1.5 billion of that represents money 'saved' by not spending on promised programs and services.

Most deeply impacted appear to be the military, veterans, First Nations, and Immigration.

Not only has the Harper government cut an estimated $53 million that formerly provided support for recent immigrants, making refugees ineligible for health care, this government has also cut immigration and citizenship staff in countries around the world, reducing its capacity to process refugee applications - and reportedly underspent the 2014 immigration budget by $100 million.

The impact of these hidden cuts is clear. It has made it almost impossible to respond to the Syrian Refugee Crisis in a meaningful way. There hasn't been the staff, or the money, or the will - although the Harper government has recently been shamed into changing its position, and pushed into announcing first that it would accept another 10,000 Syrian refugees over the next three years, and then, that it would expedite the process.

But would it have responded if it hadn't been an election year, and the Canadian people hadn't demanded that their government show more compassion, and respond to an international crisis engendered by five years of bloody civil war in Syria?

Of course, Canada has not always been warmly welcoming to immigrants. In 1939, 907 Jewish refugees fleeing the Nazis aboard the St. Louis ocean liner were refused entry and forced to return to Europe. Two hundred and fifty-four of those refugees subsequently died in Concentration camps.

There are consequences of action, and of inaction. And everyone knows, there are no Brownie points for doing the right thing, if you have to be forced to do it.

Letters to the Editor

HERITAGE HAS TO BE MAINTAINED

To the editor: If you don't remember, in 2013 there were many articles in the paper about saving the Old Bradford High School. In May of that year the town designated the school a heritage site, a victory for the town or so I thought at the time. I live on Queen St and every day I walk by the site of the old high school, if you haven't been in a while you should take a drive by. You'll see the majestic 60 foot pine that came down in a wind storm back in June laying in front of the building. You'll also see the lovely grass and ragweed field in front of the building, which was only cut once this year when a frustrated neighbour put up a four foot sign on the property with the words "cut me" written on it. If you look closely at the front left corner you'll see a lovely pile of trash consisting of a pair of manky old boots and some broken toys, though you'll have to look closely to see it past the grass. I'm very disappointed. What is the purpose of saving a building if it's not going to be looked after? If the old high school is not going to be cared for and actually used, what's the point?

Working together for seniors' accommodation

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

The strategic focus of Bradford West Gwillimbury council on seniors' accommodation – whether handicapped-accessible, affordable or full-service extended care – is beginning to bear fruit.

Dale Beasse, of Bekerman Properties Inc., attended a roundtable on seniors' housing held at the town's engineering offices earlier this year – and has since brought forward a proposal to St. John's Presbyterian Church, on 10 SR.

Bekerman Properties is proposing to purchase a portion of the church property, and construct a 4 or 5 storey building on the northeast corner of the church property, to provide approximately 130 rental units geared towards seniors, described as "high quality retirement living."

"It's very similar to a hotel, but there's more higher-paid medical support," Beasse explained, determined to address the needs of a population whose average age is 85. "People move into the kind of facility we operate because of a catalytic event" – from loss of a spouse, to the onset of dementia.

What they are offered is more than a residence; it is a supportive environment, an opportunity to be "unretire" and be active, taking advantage of high quality dining services, communal spaces, recreational activities, a spa and more. "It's a community."

Beasse said that the residence would create up to 80 jobs, when fully occupied. Last weekend, Beasse presented the $32 million project to Reverend Dan Scott and the congregation at St. John's – and met with Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Rob Keffer, who has made seniors' housing a priority of his term of office.

Mayor Keffer was asked to consider providing town support for the project, by easing the development charges or fees. Beasse told the mayor that development fees represent 6.8% of the total cost of building. "The more we can lower the capital cost, the more we can lower the rent."

Rev. Scott noted that St. John's is the oldest church in Canada north of Richmond Hill. "Since 1818 we've been trying to serve the community," Scott said, and is now pleased to be able to provide "a piece of the puzzle, by providing retirement homes... One piece of an important puzzle. This is a need in our town."

"It certainly is a need," said Mayor Keffer. "Housing for our seniors, so they don't have to move out of town... I'm really looking forward to moving forward with this project." He noted that "we have already worked successfully with staff to fast track site plan approval." Bekerman Properties, if the deal is approved by the congregation and Presbytery, hopes to break ground in the spring.

News at the Danube Seniors Leisure Centre

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF

There was a full house at the Danube Seniors Leisure Centre, 715 Simcoe Road in Bradford, for the Sept. 17 Birthday Luncheon, serving up roast pork, mashed potatoes, seasonal vegetables and dessert for only $6 for members, $9 for non-members.

As one member noted, "People know there's a good cook!"

The monthly luncheon celebrated the birthdays of members born in September, but was also supposed to be a special occasion. The Danube Centre had hoped to present Ronald McDonald House in Toronto with a cheque for $2,000 – representing the funds raised at CarrotFest, through the sale of "Gwilly" Carrot Mascot pins.

Unfortunately, the expected representative could not attend – but there was still plenty of news.

Long-awaited repairs to both the roof and the greenhouse will be underway this week, along with the installation of new eavesguttering and downspouts, carried out by the town.

"It's going to be noisy," warned president Eileen Love – but at least the repairs mean "you won't have buckets" to catch the leaks.

Coming up:

• Free Seniors Health Seminar – J.L. Scott Baker, Managing Director of Sleep Therapy Practice InspiraAIR Inc., will talk about the diagnosis and treatment of sleep disorders. Topics will include Obstructive Sleep Apnea (OSA), Continuous Positive Airway Pressure (CPAP), Assistive Devices Program, and Portable Home Oxygen for COPD. Thursday, Oct. 8 at 11 a.m., followed by lunch only $6 members, $7 non-members.

They face new challenges every day. The sex ed. and health curriculum can help. The first updates since 1998 will help parents and teachers give kids the skills they need to stay safe. Find out what kids will learn grade by grade at ontario.ca/pepe.

Discovering the arts

The Bradford Group of Four - clockwise from lower left, Kathryn Bury, Maureen Joyce, Stella Wadsworth, and Angie Horsley.

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

Angie Horsley has joined Stella Wadsworth, Maureen Joyce and Kathryn Bury as a member of the Bradford Group of Four - one of the first artists' groups in Bradford West Gwillimbury. All four showed their works at Art in the Barn on Morris Road, during this year's BWG Studio Art Tour, Sept. 18-20.

Sensitive water colours and drawings, acrylics and oil paintings, landscapes, seascapes, abstracts and florals offered something for every taste, and budget - which is the idea behind the tour: to give local artists a venue for their work, and to introduce residents to talented local artists and artisans, working in a wide range of media.

Art in the Barn was one of two group venues on this year's Studio Tour. The other was the Bradford Public Library, where painters Angela Lescard, Coral Dryden, Corrine Donnelly, Jim Woods and Marian Leeper, creative jewellers Jana Caissie and Judith Mercier, fibre artist Gail Franklin-Hawes and woodturner Bill Burtell displayed their creations. Visitors could also drop by individual studios and workshops, to see paintings by artists Jean Tranmer and Brian Scott, Swarovsky crystal creations by Vicky Topp of Krystal Energy, the eco-chic handbags and totes of Echoes in the Attic, and at Fox Fire Glass Arts studio on Hulst Drive, stained and fused glass works by Shirley Fox.

There was one stop outside of Bradford proper: Woodwright Studios in Bond Head, where ceramic artist Erika Helman, and multi-faceted artist Meade Helman welcomed visitors with tea, cookies - and art.

Carrying the torch for Special Olympics

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF
Special Olympics Canada was established in 1969 to "enrich the lives of Canadians with an intellectual disability, through the transformative power and joy of sport."

Participants range in age from two-year-olds to adults - with more than 38,000 athletes with intellectual disabilities registered in Special Olympics programs across the country.

Law enforcement officers have made Special Olympics one of their key charities, raising funds for the programs through the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics and other fundraising efforts.

Newmarket held its Torch Run back on May 13, on the Tom Taylor Trail. Simcoe County's Torch Run was held Sept. 16, starting in Bradford West Gwillimbury - where four torchbearers with the South Simcoe Police ran from the South Division station to Langford Drive in Bradford, and then ran the length of the village of Stroud in Innisfil, before handing off the flame to Barrie Police at the South Barrie GO Train station.

Carrying the torch for South Simcoe were Sgt. Sheryl Sutton, Detective Debbie Smith, Constable Holly Murray and Dispatcher Samantha Armstrong, accompanied by Deputy Chief Andrew Fletcher on the police motorcycle, a fleet of cruisers, and the mobile command unit.

It was a smaller-than-usual turnout, in part due to a heavy workload at the police service, but donations to the Special Olympics can still be made and will be welcomed, by contacting Sgt. Sutton at 905-775-3311 or sheryl.sutton@southsimcopolice.ca.

The Wellness Committee of the South Simcoe Police organized its second annual all-ages 5K Fun Run/Walk in Bradford on Sept. 19.

Last year, the event was a fundraiser for Crime Stoppers of Simcoe-Dufferin-Muskoka. This year, the beneficiary was Special Olympics, a program which provides developmentally-challenged athletes with an opportunity to compete at the highest level - to make friends, share challenges and excel through sporting events.

Special Olympian Steph and her mom Carol were guests at this year's run. Steph competes in track and field in the summer, Alpine Ski racing in the winter, and has done so for 20 years - but her favourite sport is Alpine skiing. She trains regularly at Blue Mountain and Snow Valley.

"I'm just one that never gives up," said Steph, joining the runners and walkers at the starting line at South Division on Saturday, as the sun struggled through the clouds.

The run/walk was open to all members and employees of South Simcoe Police, and their families. The goal was to match last year, which raised $2,000 for Crime Stoppers, and to promote fitness.

Buttertarts at the Bradford Farmers' Market

MIRIAM KING
Bradford Times

The Bradford Farmers' Market hosts its first ever Buttertart Festival this Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. – but the advice is to arrive early, to sample the buttertarts created by at least eight vendors, since quantities are limited and the demand is expected to be high.

Buttertarts will range from the classic to the creative, and the unusual.

Deborah Molokach, of Deb's Organics, brings her sourdough breads, real butter croissants and the market every week and has plans for a honey-coconut sugar tart – "No corn syrup!" Molokach says. "Organic for sure, and I'll be doing a spelt crust."

Laura Vree, of Sweet Handmade cookies is making a pecan buttertart, "in a shortened 'cup' of goodness, to get the cookie angle."

At Spring Farms, the whole team is working on a buttertart made with a "secret" ingredient – sweet Ontario beets.

And Tammy Jackson, of Sweet Annabella's, will be baking up a storm, offering both classical and non-traditional buttertarts (think S'mores, Blueberry-White Chocolate, and Pecan-Cognac).

A panel of celebrity judges will be tasting, and awarding prizes.

Oct. 10 is the final day of the outdoor Farmers' Market in Bradford, and the theme is a Customer Appreciation Day and Harvest Festival.

This year, to extend the season, there are plans to hold two indoor Winter Markets in the Bradford Public Library's Zima Room. There will be a Halloween Market on Oct. 31, and a Christmas Market on Dec. 19, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., providing shoppers with the opportunity to purchase produce, baking, preserves and pickles, and more from local vendors.

Soupfest celebrates the harvest

MIRIAM KING

An oxalid soup so rich, it was like velvet. A carrot soup, made with purple carrots fresh from the Holland Marsh and just-picked local garlic, that was bursting with flavour. A taco soup with so many layers, it was an adventure in a cup.

The Holland Marsh Soupfest has had many culinary highlights over the years, since it was first launched to celebrate local produce, and challenge cooks, chefs and eaters to transform fresh ingredients into soup to feed the body and soul.

This year's Soupfest will take place at Ansnorveldt Park in the Holland Marsh, in the barnet of Ansnorveldt on Dufferin St. on Saturday, Oct. 3. From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., drop by to visit vendors, a farmers' market, and sample soups created by culinary schools, restaurants and residents.

Tickets can be purchased in advance at www.hollandmarshsoupfest.ca. Adults pay $12, students and seniors pay $7 for seven samples (at the door, ticket prices go up to $15 and $10). Children and youth can enjoy five samples for $5. A family pass (two adults, two children) is $30 in advance, $35 at the door.

maker, and vying for the trophies? Contact Tasha Veer at tveer@king.ca or 905-833-5321 ext. 5223.

Also coming up on Oct. 3: King Christian School, located at 13740 Bathurst St. in East Gwillimbury, is hosting its Harvest Festival. The former Holland Marsh District Christian School will be celebrating the harvest from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., with bouncy castles, games and activities, auctions, home-baked desserts, Dutch treats and a farmers' market. All are welcome to come out. A fundraiser for the school, which receives no government funding.

Fall in love with Scanlon, reconnect with nature

JIM MASIN
Special to The Bradford Times

Everything in nature knows who or what it is. A spruce tree doesn't try to be a maple, a warbler doesn't copy a cardinal, and frogs don't aspire to be snakes, only to avoid them.

But humans are gifted with choice – and all too easily can become confused about who we are, where we're going, and what we'd like to aspire to. We can easily lose the intangibles that offer peace, love, happiness – and instead stagger, trying to identify with our physical possessions.

We can lose the simple joy of being immersed in nature, surrounded by all things natural.

I encourage you to take a day off from the routine hustle, and reconnect with nature just five minutes north of town, at Scanlon Creek – a fun place where you can participate in great programs, or just enjoy the silence.

On Saturday, Oct. 3, the Friends of Scanlon Creek have issued an invitation to residents to Fall in Love with Scanlon – to reconnect and rediscover nature on your doorstep, through a range of activities:

Introduction to Bird-Watching and Feeding, from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. A slide show, introducing the birds that can be found at Scanlon during the fall and winter – and the do's and don'ts of feeding birds.

Fall Colours & Creek Restoration Tour, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Meet at the picnic pavilion for a tour of the rehabilitated Scanlon Creek valley, and an opportunity to see the fall colours.

Fun for Kids, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Meet at the picnic pavilion, for giant bubbles, face-painting, a scavenger hunt and parachute games.

Energy Efficiency at Home, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., at the nature centre. Learn how to achieve energy efficiency at home, including the use of solar energy, and living off the grid. Come out and join the Kilowatt Club.

Scanlon Creek Conservation Area is located at 2450 - Line 9 BWG. For more information about Fall in Love with Scanlon, or the Friends of Scanlon Creek, visit facebook.com/FriendsOfScanlon or email FriendsOfScanlon@gmail.com.

The invasive Phragmites australis is taking over wetlands, ditches and fields in Ontario.

Introduced from Eurasia, the "Common Reed" is an aggressive invader, producing thousands of seeds and spreading up to 15 metres in a year, by extending its rhizomes horizontally through the soil.

While there are some pesticides available to control the invader in upland areas, the real problem is its liking for wetlands – where, for environmental reasons, pesticides can't be used.

There, said Silvia Pedrazzi of the South Simcoe District Network, the best solution has proven to be mechanical cutting.

Through the use of test plots in Bradford West Gwillimbury and the Holland Marsh, Pedrazzi and her team of Youth Rangers and conservationists have found that making two cuts per year is an effective way to control, and eventually eliminate Phragmites in wetland areas.

It's all in the timing. The first cut should be made at the end of July, when growth is most vigorous – the second cut, at the end of August, hopefully before seed heads are set.

The trick is to cut the plants as close to the ground as possible, without disturbing the roots: If the roots are disturbed, the plant reacts by spreading even more vigorously.

It is a labour-intensive and lengthy process – it can take three to five years to eliminate a patch of Phragmites – but, said Pedrazzi, "It's very important we get them under control."

Phragmites can go from a single plant to a dense stand within a few years. The plants not only crowd out native species, the roots secrete a phytotoxin that kills other plants and, over time, can sterilize the soil.

"We're really concerned about it," said Pedrazzi at a Community Work Party Day in Bradford, on Sept. 19. She and a handful of volunteers came out to the restored wetland beside the Bradford Sports Dome, to cut and control Phragmites.

It's an area where volunteers have planted native shrubs and trees beside a creek and stormwater pond, allowing the natural vegetation to return. In late summer, flowering plants and grasses support birds and other wildlife. The invasion of Phragmites poses a threat to the entire ecosystem.

It was a little late for the second cut. Many of the plants had already developed seed plumes, which the volunteers carefully cut off and bagged, for later disposal, before cutting down the stalks.

The plants were scattered among the cattails, "almost like they're trying to hide," Pedrazzi said – making it harder to hunt down and eliminate the invader. "It's a slow process, but there's progress. It just takes time and labour, and this site is so worth taking care of."

For more information see Ontario's Invasive Species Awareness Program at www.invasivespecies.com/invasers/plants-terrestrial/invasive-phragmites/. "There's a lot of online information. It's not rocket science," Pedrazzi said – but it does take a determined, and ongoing, effort.

Body in Balance celebrates

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF

Body in Balance Physiotherapy, located at 52 Holland St. East, celebrated a milestone last week: its 10th anniversary, of providing services that include physiotherapy, massage therapy, acupuncture, advanced manual therapy, aquatic therapy, radial shock wave, and more.

Founded by the brother-sister team of physiotherapists, Alessandro and Sonia Rosatelli, Body in Balance has grown and expanded, over the past decade – and last week, celebrated the anniversary with customer appreciation draws, Princess and Super Hero days for the kids, and a barbecue lunch on Friday catered by Miconi's of Oak Ridge.

Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Rob Keffer, Deputy Mayor James Leduc and members of council brought congratulations from the town.

"Body in Balance – what a great name," said Mayor Keffer. "It's what they are trying to do."

Ward 2 Councillor Gary Baynes noted, "This council has gone to a lot of grand openings, first days – but this is more special. Ten years."

"We're just grateful the town has been so accepting of us as a business. They've allowed us to thrive. We're so blessed," said Sonia Rosatelli, crediting her team, present and past. "We've had great staff. They mean the world to me."

"It's been a great 10 years," said Alex Rosatelli. "We've become a member of the community. We're just happy to be here to help people out."

Grand opening of Capelli Lounge

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF

When the sign first went up on the front of the newly-renovated building at 62 John St. West, neighbours were a little concerned. A lounge, opening on a quiet Bradford side street? But Capelli Lounge isn't a bar, or even an espresso cafe. 'Capelli' means 'hair' – and the Capelli Lounge is a stylish new hair salon offering the latest trends, styles, cuts and colours in a setting that combines modern and rustic.

The brainchild of stylist Alessandro Cavallo, services include cuts, styling and blowdry, updos and curls, touch-ups, colours and high-lighting, cuts and shaves for men, and haircuts for kids.

See www.capellilounge.ca for more information or to book an appointment or consultation, or call 905-551-4664.

On Saturday, Sept. 12, Sandro and his team – Nick and Sabrina – friends and family welcomed MPP Julia Munro, Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Rob Keffer and members of council to cut the ribbon, and officially open Capelli Lounge.

New Bradford Drug Mart open for business

Bradford Drug Mart officially opened its doors at 54 Holland St. West on Sept. 5, in the Bradford Plaza just around the corner from the Bradford West Gwillimbury Family Health Centre.

Owner Gabriel Ibrahim is offering a full pharmacy service, as well as popular over-the-counter medications and health products, free blood pressure testing, and a giftware department, offering unique birthday, hostess and housewarming gift ideas.

Ibrahim, wife Diana and son Kirolos were welcomed to the community by Peter Van Loan, Conservative MP, who congratulated them for "adapting to the changing marketplace," and contributing to the community, and by Bradford West Gwillimbury Mayor Rob Keffer. "This is an important part of our town, the downtown core. It sort of (is) the heart and the soul," Mayor Keffer said. "We are seeing some improvements in the downtown."

"Thank you so much for being here and sharing this moment with us," said Ibrahim. "Hopefully we can be a good addition to the people of Bradford." For information email bradforddrugmart@yahoo.ca or call 905-551-7555. New patients welcomed.

A BIA for Bradford?

Staff

A proposal for the Downtown Revitalization Committee, that town staff look into the option of a Business Improvement Area, prompted some debate in council on Sept. 15.

Councillor Peter Dykile Jr., who owns a business in the downtown, asked for more information before supporting a BIA. Although the concept is interesting, he said,

"we need to visit or examine how many buildings would be in this area," and the financial impact on the stores. "My concern is we don't have a large enough area."

Chief Administrative Officer Geoff McKnight noted that the impact will depend on the BIA's budget — and suggested that a new BIA in Bradford would keep that budget strictly limited.

"If the budget is small, the impact is small."

Councillor Dykile pointed out that the Barrie BIA, which has a full-time administrator, has a budget of half a million dollars per year, and stores within the BIA are assessed $750, annually — a big bite for small business. "Everybody's concerned about the cost."

"There's no scary thing here," responded Deputy Mayor James Leduc, noting that the Barrie BIA has been in operation for 40 years, but when it began, its budget was much more modest. "They started from nothing, and now they have something."

Leduc said. "There is no scary big tax thing coming. It's based on the budget."

"I'm going to play Devil's Advocate," said Councillor Gary Lamb. "We (Bradford) used to have a BIA," but when Lamb was first elected to council, "the first thing we did was we got rid of the BIA, because it was a third level of taxation."

Lamb noted that a $750 levy, to a business that's struggling to pay rent, pay taxes, pay staff and buy product, "could be onerous."

Lamb suggested that a BIA would not be as effective as the existing Downtown Revitalization Committee, a committee appointed by council, and warned that downtown stores don't have the financial resources of the big box stores and chains at the west end. "It's a lot of Mom-and-Pop Shops, and they're already getting belted with double taxation."

In the end, council voted to ask staff to review and assess the potential for a BIA in the downtown, coinciding with the Community Improvement Plan Area already designated.

Transforming a former restaurant into a new, restful mattress shop was a challenge. For one thing, owner David Heath had to remove the 3,000 lb. stone pizza oven from the centre of the floor space.

"We ended up bringing in a crane," Heath says.

The result is Bedzzz Plus Mattress Store & More, at 444 Holland St. West — a shop that offers name-brand mattresses by Sealy, Serta, Tempur-pedic, Kingsdown, and shortly, Simmons, but also Canadian-made headboards, linens, duvets and pillows — a one-stop shop for a good night's sleep.

Heath is determined to offer Bradford West Gwillimbury residents all they could need in a mattress store. "We have a comfort guarantee, free delivery, and a low-price guarantee" — just like a major competitor — with prices that start as low as $399.

Bauer's First Shift comes to Bradford

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF

Hockey Canada, Bauer and Bradford West Gwillimbury Minor Hockey are hosting the First Shift Program in Bradford this year.

Targeting first-time players between the ages of 6 and 10 who have never registered for a hockey program, First Shift offers a complete set of Bauer equipment, outfitting young hockey players from head to toe, plus six one-hour on-ice training sessions for only $125 – with an emphasis on fun.

Dave Heath, VP of Operations with BWGMHA calls it a "great community-based program."

BWGMHA applied to host the program, which is open to boys and girls not only in Bradford West Gwillimbury, but Innisfil, East Gwillimbury, and surrounding areas. The association provides the ice-time and the volunteer coaches and trainers, while Bauer provides the equipment, easily a $300 to $400 value.

Only 45 spaces are available, and they are filling up fast, Heath says. There will be a "fitting day" on Oct. 9; the First Shift program starts Oct. 24.

For more information, see the BWGMHA website, bradfordbulldogs.com under "First Shift Program" - or email Heath directly at vpoper@bradfordbulldogs.com, with the name and date of birth of the young player, to register.

"It's open to anybody... If they fit the program profile, we'll take them," Heath says, introducing youngsters to the great game of hockey.

Terry Fox began his Marathon of Hope after losing a leg to Osteosarcoma. His goal was to run across Canada, from sea to sea, raising awareness of cancer and money for research. At the time, the population of Canada stood at 24.5 million; Fox hoped to raise $1 for every man, woman and child.

To date, the Terry Fox Foundation has raised close to $700 million worldwide, with 84 cents out of every dollar going to research and programs.

This year, the goal is to raise $35 million across Canada - both to mark the 35th anniversary, and once again, to raise $1 for every Canadian. The country's population now stands at 35.7 million.

For Silva Kniff, "My goal over the next couple of years is $1 for every Bradford West Gwillimbury resident."

By Tuesday, the preliminary numbers were in: the 2015 Terry Fox Run in Bradford had raised about $12,000, with donations still accepted online.

Coming up:

The second annual Run for the Trails at Scanlon Creek Conservation Area takes place this Saturday, Sept. 26, with registration starting at 8 a.m. The goal is to raise $20,000 for accessible trails at the Conservation Area located north of Bradford, 2450 - 9th Line. Events include a 3K Kids' Run/Walk at 9 a.m. for ages 13 and under (registration fee $25); a 1K Kids' Walk or Jog at 9:30 a.m. (registration $25); and a 7K Open Run/Walk ($15 Adults, $25 Youth). Register online at www.events.runningroom.com or www.lake-simcoefoundation.ca/events-run-for-the-trails. Participants receive swag bag, T-shirt, and medals, and a great run on and for the Trails at Scanlon. Ryley's Lemonade Stand

BRADFORD TIMES STAFF

Ryley is not only a T-ball player, for the Vin Bon team, he's also a pretty effective fundraiser for the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Ryley is 6.

This summer, he has raised over $335 for Sick Kids by setting up a lemonade stand outside the Bradford Public Library on Friday evenings when the Back Alley Cruisers Car Club meets. He's been helped out by his dad, and by best friend, Michael.

On Sept. 18, Ryley set up his stand - inspired by the cartoon series, "Charlie Brown" - but the windy, cold and wet weather had a dampening effect on his fundraising.

MARIAM KIMO/BRADFORD TIMES

Ryley's Lemonade Stand, raising money for the Hospital for Sick Children, outside the public library in Bradford.

He wasn't discouraged, though. "He's been a fighter since he was born," says Dad Joe Fernandes.

Ryley has a heart condition - Tachycardia, an abnormally fast heart rate - which could put him at risk if he gets ill. So far, he hasn't had to go to Sick Kids, but he's aware of his condition.

"It hasn't stopped him. He's been playing T-Ball," says Joe - and raising funds for other kids.
